Uhhhh why is @SuzanTisdale gaslighting us? At this point people have talked about Sue's editorial behind the scenes. I have heard from multiple people at this point that she explicitly had issues with race being mentioned in books.

Nobody is saying she's a skinhead or a member of the KKK. They're saying that she was a gatekeeper who may have kept marginalized people out of stores and publishing deals.

And if your video says that Sue is no more a racist than you, you sound EXTREMELY racist.

Nobody wants anyone to hate anyone, but like if someone used institutional power to discriminate on the basis of race, I don't think they should continue to have institutional power.

And if your institution insists on giving that person institutional power, I hope your institution fails.

And like, if your line of acceptability is “calling for the annihilation of a group of people” but you don’t have an issue with systematically excluding a race of people from bookstores and publishing contracts?

Then you are DEFINITELY a racist.

And like, @SuzanTisdale is entitled to be a racist and to run her publishing house as a racist, but you know, we’re entitled to just not read or review her books because I hate racist books.

I GOGGLED at that. Like, she's okay with everything up to actual genocide, and she thinks that means she's not racist.

GOGGLED.

Okay but Courtney you’re being so reasonable and it’s like you aren’t even acknowledging Suzan Tisdale’s painstakingly crafted straw person. You might as well say you don’t even CARE about, like, 37/38 of Schopenhauer’s ways to win arguments.
